TECH TAKEOVER

AVOID THIS

VIRUS

BREAKING NEWS:
Silicon Valley, CA --

There has been a recent surge in attacks from technological devices on humans. The exact details of the attacks still remain unknown but there has been a correlation between the purchase of tech products and a potential malware virus that becomes released. This is a vicious virus that will attack any person and device they are using. These devices quickly adapt to the virus and become malicious themselves.

Several accounts of civilians being chased out of their homes by their own computers, or even electrocuted while paying with their Apple Watch have been reported.

We are warning you to beware of this dangerous threat and the capability it has to takeover all of humanity. Use this technological device carefully and if you spot any sign of a virus, notify authorities immediately.
